Your Guide To The Business Community And the Craig Chamber Of Commerce

State senator headlines annual meeting

Senator Al White, Mayor Don Jones and the Moffat County Commissioners will headline at the Craig Chamber of Commerce's annual meeting and fourth-annual State of the County event on Feb. 19 at the Holiday Inn of Craig.

This event generally sells out as residents gather to hear the state of the city, county and chamber.

"We're so proud to be able to present an event that features such a concise overview of what's going on in political worlds that directly affect our own," Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Christina Currie said. "I think people enjoy this event because it's a fun way to learn about what's going on and how your tax dollars are being used. People often ignore that information because it's so dry. At State of the County, it's not."

In addition to speeches from elected officials, Craig Chamber of Commerce board members will present the organization's annual report and the 2010 Small Business, Large Business and

EVENT DETAILS

What: State of the County
When: 6:30 p.m. Feb. 19
Where: Holiday Inn of Craig
Cost: $40/ticket, which includes dinner. Tickets are available at the Craig Chamber of Commerce.

Sponsored by Craig Daily Press, KRAI 55 Country and the Craig Chamber of Commerce

Businessperson of the Year awards.

"We have some really strong businesses in our community and selecting the award winners is always difficult," Chamber board president Joe Bird said. "But, we're really excited about this year's choices. The award presentations are always a highlight of the event."

The Chamber expects 2010 to be a pivotal year for its members and for the organization. The Chamber has committed itself to several issues this year, including enhancing marketing opportunities for its members, launching a Shop Local Campaign and providing employers with much-needed workforce assistance.

Presentations from the city, county and chamber are staples of the event. Past State of the County events have featured guest speakers from economic development and tourism industry leaders, the fire district, hospital, school district and the community college. This year will feature guest speaker Senator Al White who will speak about the state's economy, 2009 legislation and what we have to look forward to in 2010.

"State of the County is really a government and business snapshot, presented to real people in real terms," Currie said. "We're thrilled that Senator White is willing to participate in this event and I'm looking forward to hearing about the issues that will affect us in Northwest Colorado."

Particularly those that affect business. It's so important that we be proactive instead of reactive when it comes to the actions the legislature is taking on our behalf."

State of the County begins at 6:30 p.m. Tickets are $40 each and includes dinner, dessert and the program. There will be a cash bar.

Ambassadors ready to make a difference in 2010

Can it be, a new year is upon us already? As 2010 begins, the entire Chamber body would like to thank all the businesses that allow their employees time to volunteer as Ambassadors.

The Ambassadors play a huge role in the Chamber's success each year. We would extend our gratitude to KRAI, Cook Chevrolet, Backroads Web Design, Kidder Transportation, The Embroidery Shop, Bank of Colorado, High Tech Audio Video, Moffat Insurance Agency, Workforce Center (SWAP), Bank of the West, Bonaker & Associates, BrassKey Realty, Craig Daily Press & the Moffat County School District for allowing their employees to participate in this dynamic group. CUSTOMER SERVICE STAR

Submitted by Annie MacGregor
As a member of the Ambassadors, I am going to be a little selfish and nominate my own Customer Service Star for the month of December. Of course there is good reason for this and it starts with a little story. A week or so ago I took my daughter to a friend's house, it was dark and snowy so I left my car on. We ran in the house, I got her all settled in and said my goodbyes. As I hurry back to the car as it is very cold and to my surprise my little Pekingese puppy had locked my car! After enticing the pup to step on the unlock button failed and I return to the friend's house to borrow the phone. A bit unsure of who to call so late on a Thursday night my friend suggested I call Joe Bird of Cook Chevrolet. Being the Customer Service rock star that he is, he went to his work and came to my friend's house and began unlocking my doors in the freezing cold. It took a couple of tries but of course he was successful. Now Joe is a star for that, but he is my hero because he was willing to come help me even though he had just returned with his wife from a very long medical procedure out of town. Joe Bird is such an asset to our community and we are very blessed to have such a great man serving our community. Thank you Joe for all that you do!

businesses are helping our community to be even better by allowing their employees time away from their job. We can't stress enough how thankful we are for all the Ambassadors & their employers. We look forward to great success and lots of fun in 2010!

Dos and Don'ts of e-mail marketing

By the U.S. Chamber

E-mail marketing is all about sending the right message to the right person at the right time. But with so many messages constantly flooding our inboxes, that can be a challenge. So how do you cut through the clutter to make sure that your customers and potential customers hear your voice?

Ask permission. Most people will hit the "report spam" button when they do not know who the sender is. Your message goes unread, and your efforts are wasted. To organically grow your list of contacts, add an e-mail sign-up box on your Web site or rent space in an industry newsletter if you have not yet developed your own. Getting your name out there and driving people to your Web site will make you more familiar to potential customers and set the stage for an engaged audience. To quote one of my favorite movies, "Build it and they will come."

Most important, compliance with federal anti-spam laws is a must. Read the FTC's Facts of Business (<http://tinyurl.com/6ldb88>) or visit www.ftc.gov/spam to learn more.

Don't be a stranger – or a pest.

Keep in mind the frequency of your e-mails. Are you sending enough e-mails so that your customers remember you, or too many that they become sick of you? To find the best frequency, get set up with a good e-mail service provider – the Chamber uses ExactTarget – and test, test, test. An e-mail service provider offers Web-accessed e-mail marketing software that will assist in creating, sending, and tracking your marketing e-mails. Tracking allows you to determine how many people have opened your e-mail or clicked on a link. Test to see how variations in your program (e.g., frequency of messages, time of day) affect those response rates.

Get personal. Take the words "e-mail blast" out of your vocabulary. E-mail is personal; one size does not fit all. Think about the customer's experience. Send a thank-you note when a customer makes a purchase or a coupon when – according to your product lifecycle – he or she is ready to purchase again.

Don't forget the details. Spell check and copy edit. Have a co-worker proofread your e-mail before you send it. Always send yourself a test of the e-mail. Click on every link and make sure it looks how you intend it to look.

Do your research. Sign up to receive another company's e-mails. Contact the publisher of an online newsletter that you enjoy and ask questions. The more you know, the better your e-mail marketing program will be.
